TOOK BICHLORIDE

Cora Towne Probably Cannot Recover—Fred Flinn Charged With Furnishing the Poison.

For the purpose of relieving a terrible pain in her stomach, as she says, Cora Towne, 24 years old, took two bichloride tablets at her home last Wednesday afternoon and now lies in the St. Johnsbury Hospital with little prospect of recovery. She claims the tablets were given to her by Fred Flinn with instructions to take them freely to relieve her pain. Flinn was arrested last Saturday afternoon and is in jail awaiting a hearing. He declares he did not give her the tablets and sometimes says he does not know where she got them and at other times has said she got them of a girl employed in one of the local hotels.

The facts in the case are hard to determine owing to the conflicting accounts. The girl's statement was taken as a death bed statement and she declares and reiterates even in the presence of Flinn that he gave them to her and instructed her to take them for pain. The bottle however was plainly marked poison and, according to her own account, she did not take any of the tablets until several days after he furnished them to her.

It was not known yesterday when Flinn will be given a hearing before Assistant Judge Fred Hoffman of Wheelock at the Court House this morning and if the evidence warrants a special grand jury called to hear the case. The formal charge against Flinn will not be made until the inquest is closed.

The Mother's Story

The poison was taken about 4.20 last Wednesday afternoon at the Towne home in the Estabrooks tenement house on Pearl street. Cora Towne had been sick for some time, having given premature birth to a pair of twin babies about two weeks ago. She was in great pain Wednesday and said she believed she would die. She took two tablets to relieve her pain. She took out two tablets and set the bottle on the table. Her mother noticed the skull and cross bones and cried to her daughter she had taken poison. Cora replied "It is too late now mother," and threw her head back and died.

Mrs. Towne ran out and got some milk and eggs and gave the woman some of both. They tried to call several doctors but they refused to visit the family and at eight o'clock the town doctor, Dr. McSweeney, came. He treated the woman there at the home until Sunday afternoon when she was taken to the St. Johnsbury hospital.

An Unsavory Record

Cora Towne has long had an unsavory record and after March with her sister, Mrs. Blodgett, was sent to the House of Correction at Rutland to serve a two years' sentence for prostitution. She was released on probation early in August and Fred Flinn met her at Bellows Falls on her way home from that institution. It had been frequent caller at the Towne home until Cora began about two weeks ago to receive the attention of George Colette, an alleged wrestler from Berlin, N. H. After a few days' courtship they were engaged to be married and planned to marry at her home last Sunday morning.

One day last week Flinn called at the house and wanted to see Cora, but she refused to see him. He then put his head in a bed room window and called for her when a younger sister, Mary Whalen, ordered him away, and threw two dippers of water on him according to the story of Mrs. Towne.

The home is a dirty and most uninviting four room tenement in the basement of the Estabrooks Block on Pearl street. It does not open on the street but into a back yard without a sign of grass or any other evidence of cleanliness. Besides Mrs. and Mrs. Towne, there are five daughters in the family, Mary Whalen, 15 years old, married and about to give birth to a baby, Maude Burnell who lives in Waterford, Mrs. Sadie Martelle who lives in town, Martha Blodgett supposed to be in East Concord and Cora who married George Belville of Lyndonville who got a divorce from her and the custody of two sons that were born to them. The stories about the morals of the family are too disgusting for publication.

"Way Down East"

The old favorite, "Way Down East," at the Colonial Saturday evening attracted a good house and proved to be just as pleasing as when it made its first appearance. Hi Holler still amuses the crowd, while the songs by the quartet, and other musical numbers give enlightening variety to the program. The parts were well taken especially those of Uncle Anasa, who endeavors to "live up to the Scripture" and gentle Anna Moore who was unusually good. Such simple home plays are very restful in an age of problem plays and the large audience was an evidence that there is still a demand for clean melodrama.

Make the reading of the classified ads a part of your week's business routine—for it may prove to be the most profitable part.

WHITE SLAVERY

Mrs. Whittemore Addressed Women's Club On Her Work Among Girls of the Street.

The November meeting of the Woman's club held Monday afternoon opened with the secretary's report. The following names were presented for membership: Mrs. D. D. Bean, Mrs. G. R. Bollinger, Mrs. E. E. Holbrook, Mrs. L. N. Smythe, Mrs. J. Thomas Brighty and Mrs. F. M. Welsh. Announcement was made that the meeting of the executive board of the State Federation of women's clubs will be held in White River Junction, November 6. The meeting was then given into the hands of the Social Science committee, of which Mrs. F. S. Tolman is chairman. Miss Ruth Flinn sang two selections in a very pleasing manner, being accompanied by Miss Eugenia Scott. Mrs. Tolman then introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. E. M. Whittemore, of New York.

After a brief introduction Mrs. Whittemore requested that a few minutes be devoted to silent prayer. After this she told briefly of her past life. She had been an invalid for 12 years, suffering intensely from spinal trouble. At last she shut herself away from the rest of the world for three days and gave herself up to prayer, saying that if she were healed she would devote her life to whatever God might have for her to do. In four days she was as well as anyone. Then it was that she realized that her work was to be with the "girls of the street," whom previously she had loathed and almost hated. It was hard for her to make up her mind to do this work, but finally convinced that that was what the Lord demanded of her, she entered upon this great task with the fervor of her convictions and in such a way that she has been able to do untold good. In a very forceful and appealing way she asked the audience to do something to help these thousands of girls who are leading lives every day so much more terrible than we could even imagine, basing her appeal on the commandment of our Lord, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

Mrs. Whittemore then cited incidents that brought home to all those who listened the awful truths, that it was more often girls from fine families, even well educated girls, that need help, more than the girls of the slums. She enumerated some of the many ways in which girls are led into this kind of life from which she and her fellow-workers are trying to save them. She stated that it was more often girls from fine families, even well educated girls, that need help, more than the girls of the slums. She enumerated some of the many ways in which girls are led into this kind of life from which she and her fellow-workers are trying to save them.

Many stories that showed the need and desire for help of the "girls of the street" were told. Mrs. Whittemore surely showed the greatness of her field and the vast amount of good that she and her helpers are doing not only in New York, but in all parts of the world wherever she has been able to establish her little missions, the "Doors of Hope."

After this address, the club voted to have their December meeting in the evening instead of afternoon as is customary.

Spoke at South Church
Monday evening Mrs. E. M. Whittemore spoke at a mass meeting in the South church. The church was well filled and their interest held throughout the service. The program began with organ selections by A. H. Brooks, after which Rev. Paul Dwight Moody read scripture and offered prayer. Miss Boynton, Miss Hall and A. H. Brooks rendered "Hymn to St. Cecilia," in a most pleasing manner. The chorus of 50 male voices then sang, after which the meeting was given over to the speaker of the evening, Mrs. Whittemore.

She used as her text "Through the Lion thou shalt go valiantly," and in a most impressive way developed this subject along the lines of which she herself is so familiar. Various stories and incidents were cited and a very interesting address given. This was followed by another selection by the male chorus. An offering was then taken for the work of the district nurse. This amounted to $10.00. The meeting was closed by prayer and benediction by Rev. Peter Black.

CONVENTION PROGRAM

Caledonia County S. S. Association Meets at Danville, Nov. 13

The annual convention of the Caledonia County Sunday School Association will be held at the Methodist church in Danville on Thursday, Nov. 13. Church Service in Theatre

Over 300 people, representing all creeds and non-church goers as well, gathered at the Globe Theatre Sunday evening for the religious service held under the auspices of the South church. With the exception of a solo by Mrs. Collins Brodren, the music was all congregational and from the Gospel hymns. Mr. Moody's short talk was on the healing of the blind man and was a simple story told in the simplest language, but its very simplicity carried a force which held the closest attention of the audience. These services will be held every Sunday evening this month in this central location with the idea of carrying the church to those who will not come to it.

Hon. Daniel A. Poling Coming
The people of St. Johnsbury and vicinity have a real treat in store for them, as the Hon. Daniel A. Poling of Columbus, Ohio, will speak here on the evening of Nov. 20th. He is the man who spoke so convincingly at the National Convention of Christian Endeavor in Los Angeles, Cal., last spring, that the great audience of about 5,000 persons rose to their feet and took the "Wm. Shaw" pledge.
